

Exploring the lived experiences of mothers caring for children with complex needs at home.

Dr Honor Nicholl
School of Nursing and Midwifery,
Trinity College, Dublin.

Background

- Doctoral study
- Registered Children's nurse
- All Ireland study

The study

- Phenomenon of interest

Mothers' experiences of caring for a child with complex needs at home in Ireland within a contemporary health care environment.

Context

- Increasing numbers of children with “life-limiting” illnesses*
- Increasing emphasis on service provision and community care
- Care by parents /mothers*

Aim

- To explore the mothers' life-worlds and from this to develop a greater understanding of their experiences (and to identify potential interventions that may support mothers)
- To describe, analyse and explain in order to illuminate this phenomenon*.
- Focus was to investigate understanding and interpret the text in which understanding is reported (Gadamer, 1979).

Research framework

- Phenomenology based on the work of Heidegger and Gadamer
- An interpretivist approach in which the perspective of the other, as well as the researcher, is important.
- Three beliefs
- Reality is complex and based on subjective experiences
- I am not separate from the research*
- Truth is best achieved by conducting the research process openly with subjects in their natural environments and without prior theorising (Lincoln and Guba, 1985)

Recruitment

- Via gatekeepers* – 60 mothers invited to contribute
- 17 participated
- Written consent with ongoing confirmation and information

Data collection

- Unstructured in-depth multiple interviews (3)
- Diaries (3) – a good day, a bad day and a normal day
- 48 interviews
- 11 sets of diaries
- Researcher diaries, field notes, memos*

The children

- Aged under 1-19*
- Identified by service providers
- *Children had rare disorders, some of which were progressive
- Metabolic, neurological & genetic disorders, rare syndromes, no diagnosis*

The mothers

- 17 (10 RoI;7 NI)
- 14 had one child with complex needs
- 3 had more than one child with complex needs
- *Young adults with complex needs (unrelated)
- *Experiences of death of children

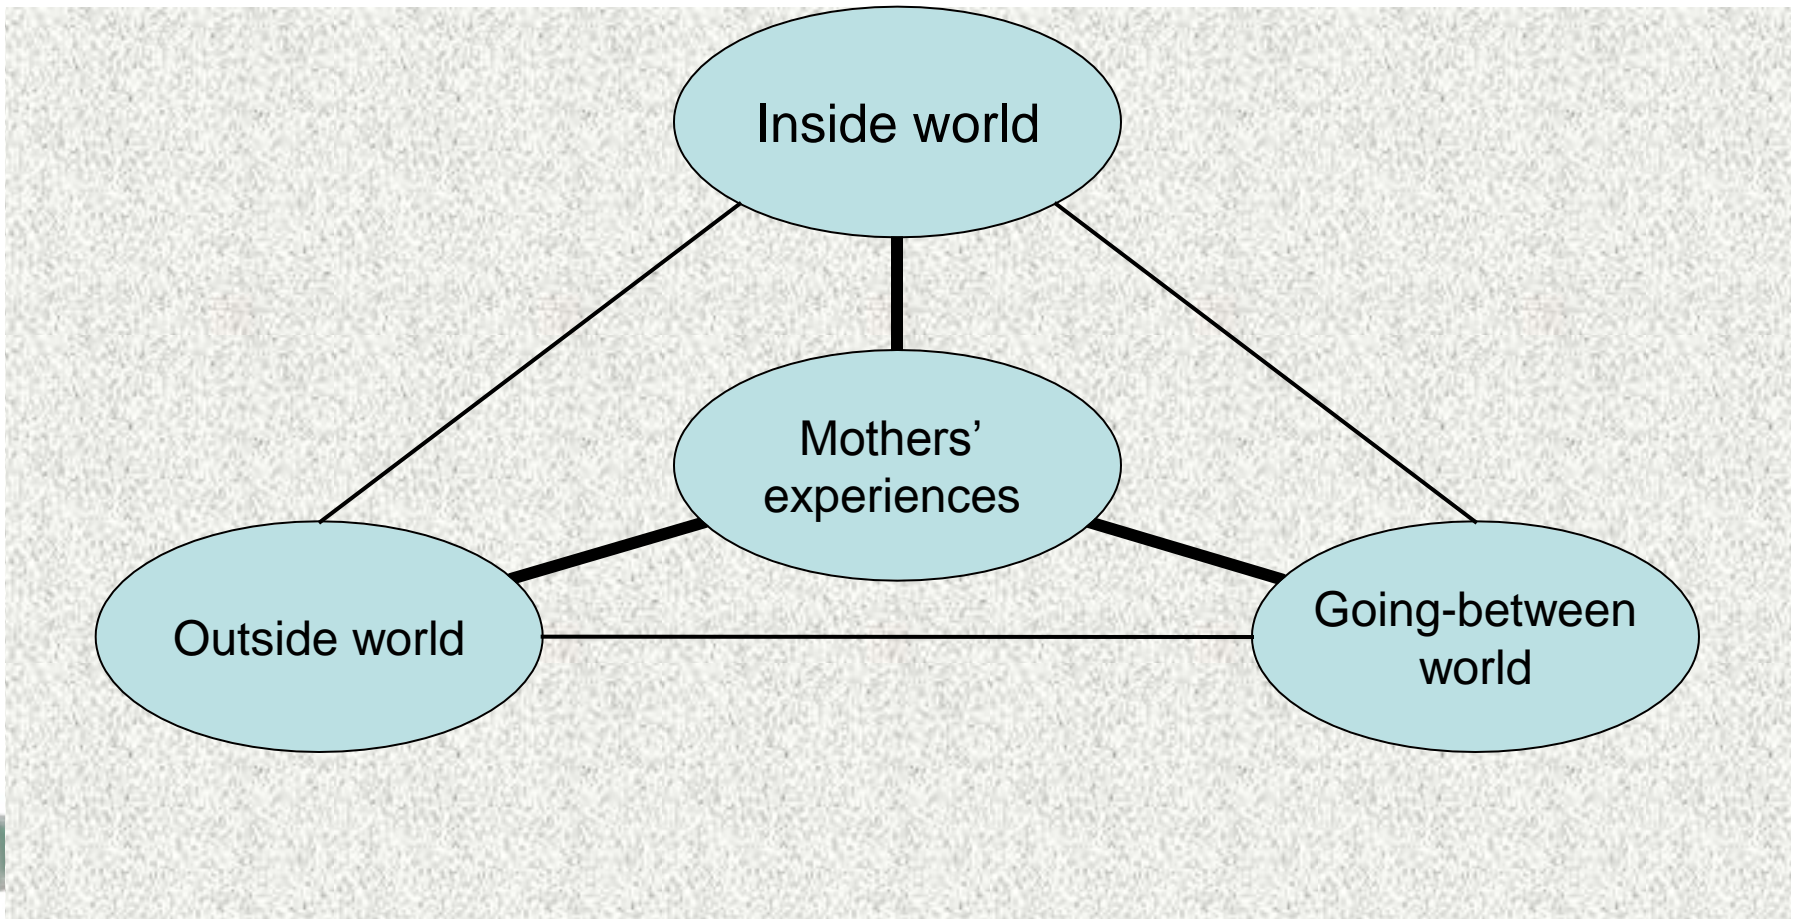

The findings

- Different to the literature..stress/coping etc
- Different mothering experience
- Confronted by complex, unremitting care-giving
- Three worlds
- Eight dimensions

Three worlds

Dimensions

- Care-giving*
- Paperwork and administration
- Constant instability
- Constant observation
- A no-choice situation
- Knowingness
- Unknowingness
- Constant communication*

Mothers' experiences

Care-giving

Paperwork and administration

Constant instability

Constant observation

No choice situation

Knowingness

Unknowingness

Constant communication

Summary

- Mother's experiences occur in 3 worlds
- They include many dimensions that need to be understood in their totality.

Thank you

- To the mothers who contributed,
 - The organisations used in recruitment.
-
- Any questions
 - Contact nichollh@tcd.ie
 - 003531 8963702

